2. Annotation to the course
The actualization of the use of communication tools at the present stage is natural, because the experience of economically developed countries proves it. The application of such measures in the domestic market requires specific knowledge, skills and competencies. Sales promotion is becoming an increasingly important component of the complex of marketing communications. Given that the effectiveness of such activities is much higher than direct advertising, and the costs are much lower. The communication goals of the enterprise are closely intertwined with the general goals of the enterprise. One of the most effective and efficient methods of promoting goods on the market is to inform customers about the company's products and its production capabilities. For advertising of goods and services use the press of radio, television, cinema, mail advertising, advertising and commercial literature, participation in exhibitions, seminars, etc. The main thing is to inform consumers how the offered goods and services differ favorably from the goods and services of competitors. That is why the correctness of compiling and presenting advertising information, the correctness of the choice of a marketing communication policy is so important.
